Interiors with character: the very essence of decoration

DECOR&DESIGN

Today's and tomorrow's interiors: from contemporary to design-oriented

A gallery space showcasing a variety of handcrafted and modern decorative items. The upper half of the image is dominated by numerous pendant lamps of different shapes and materials, including woven rattan, dark metal, and light-colored ceramic. Below the lamps, several large, shallow, bowl-shaped vessels made of woven natural fibers are displayed on white rectangular pedestals. In the foreground, three flat, rectangular woven trays are laid out on a white surface. To the right, a long, low wooden bench is visible. In the background, a person is partially visible, looking at the displays. The overall aesthetic is a blend of traditional craftsmanship and modern design.

A woman with brown hair tied back, wearing a white shirt and a high-visibility orange and white striped vest, is seen from behind. She is holding a smartphone up to take a photo of a large, colorful mosaic wall. The wall is composed of many small, rectangular tiles in various colors including red, orange, yellow, and black. In the center of the wall is a square area with a white border, containing a blue circle and some teal tiles. To the left of the woman is a red curtain. In the bottom right corner, there is a small white table with a green sign that says "BARRO".
